

GLOBAL STUDIES

NO. 7

U.S. News & World
Report 2020

WHY STUDY GLOBAL STUDIES AT BRYANT?

Engage with accomplished Global Studies scholars while learning about important global issues ranging from social movements and migration to human rights law and environmental sustainability.

➤ Our interdisciplinary program draws faculty from 10 areas of study, allowing you to attain broad knowledge and multiple perspectives of important global themes through courses in Anthropology, Communication, History, Language, Legal Studies, Politics, Science, Sociology, and other areas.

➤ After completing a core group of classes, you design a curriculum that best suits your interests and future goals in working on global issues.

➤ Graduates succeed at public policy institutes, non-profit organizations addressing health and education concerns, the United Nations, and the U.S. Department of State. They also work at for-profit enterprises and earn graduate degrees in Global Studies-related fields.

CLAIRE GRACIA '18

Youth in Development Facilitator
Peace Corps, Peru

MAJORS: Global Studies; Spanish

MINOR: Management

HOMETOWN: Providence, RI

PATH: Studied abroad in Spain; recipient of the Commencement Award for Excellence in Global Studies; Vice President of Public Relations, ONE Campaign; Vice President of Project Development, SustainUs; Sigma Iota Rho International Foreign Language Honor Society; Delta Zeta sorority; MyPath Mentor; representative of the Global Studies Department on the Dean's Advisory Council.

“My Global Studies classes pushed me to explore the world and urged me to be open to new experiences and cultures. During my time at Bryant, I got to travel to 15 countries. Those experiences gave me a different idea of travel. I no longer want to just visit other countries – I want to fully interact with them.”

INSPIRING FACULTY

Bryant's award-winning and interdisciplinary Global Studies educators and mentors are drawn from 10 programs in the College of Arts and Sciences. These world-class experts in diverse fields get to know you as an individual in our close-knit, student-centered environment. They will help you design a curriculum that aligns with your interests and goals. You will attain knowledge, develop a global perspective, and strengthen critical thinking skills highly valued by employers and graduate schools.

THE GLOBAL STUDIES FACULTY INCLUDES:

- An internationally honored legal historian on the impact of the Holocaust on law and human rights.
- A specialist in comparative law, human rights, and the intersections of law and religion whose research and writing awards include the Ius Commune Prize for research on reasonable accommodation for religion and belief and the Addison Brown Prize at Harvard Law School for work on the recognition of Islamic talaq (divorce) in Western jurisdictions.
- A former Fulbright and Watson Scholar who has worked on Capitol Hill, with the World Bank, and with Save the Children, and has studied refugee and forced migration issues.

“If we present our students with global challenges, they'll learn the tools that can help them solve those issues as tomorrow's leaders.”

EDINALDO TEBALDI, PH.D.

*Professor of Economics
Director of the Honors Program*

Among Our Distinguished Faculty:

ALEX PERULLO, PH.D.

Here's an abbreviated sample path to success:

LINDSEY LERNER '15

Founder, Level Exchange
 Consultant, Steel Wool Entertainment
 Providence, RI

MAJOR: Global Studies

MINOR: Business Administration

HOMETOWN: Warwick, RI

PATH: Upon graduation, Lerner founded Level Exchange, a content creation studio and publishing company designed to help local artists and content creators in small markets; studied abroad in Chile; member of the Women's Rowing Team; developed and completed a Directed Study on the Anthropology of Music.

"I am a firm believer that art is a business, and business is an art – and that you definitely need both. There's really a sweet spot between the two. When I combined my anthropology studies with the culture of business that I had learned from Bryant, it all really started to make sense."

WHAT SETS BRYANT'S PROGRAM APART?

1 Engagement with Multidisciplinary Faculty Experts

- You will develop broad knowledge of how the world works through courses in Anthropology, Communication, History, Language, Legal Studies, Politics, Science, Sociology, and other subjects.
- You will benefit from a variety of perspectives on important global themes such as inequality, politics and governance, migration, peace and protest, indigeneity, the environment, health, and human rights.
- Guided by faculty experts, you will learn to apply the theories, principles, and skills derived from your global studies coursework as you conduct independent research to produce your own analyses of public policy issues and cultural interactions.

2 Design Your Path to Success

- Attain foundational knowledge and skills.
- Learn a foreign language, work in a dynamic internship, have an opportunity to study abroad, and develop an independent senior project of your own design.
- Work with faculty mentors to determine which of three content tracks – Global Politics, Global Economics, or Global Cultural Interaction – best aligns with your interests and goals.
- Each track includes courses from at least three disciplines to provide you with access to a wide range of academic discourse and allow holistic study of issues that cross disciplinary lines.

3 Experiential Learning Opportunities

- Faculty-supervised internships provide you with the opportunity to apply the theories, principles, and skills developed through Global Studies coursework.
- You can participate in a semester-long internship in Washington, D.C. available through the partnership between Bryant University and The Washington Center.
- Immerse yourself in the impactful and insightful work of leading think tanks developing and exploring public policy, an experience that will set you apart from the competition.
